

About the Sculptor....

Tobe Zweygardt, county historian and metal sculptor was born in Cheyenne County in 1916 of Volga German decent. As a youth, Tobe spent many hours hunting and trapping along the Cherry Creek. It was during those hours that Tobe became enthralled with the Indian history as he discovered Indian Artifacts.

A farmer and welder by trade, Tobe began sculpting as a adult, using barb wire and discarded metal in his creations. A farm accident took four fingers from his left hand. Amazingly, Tobe does his art with only six fingers.

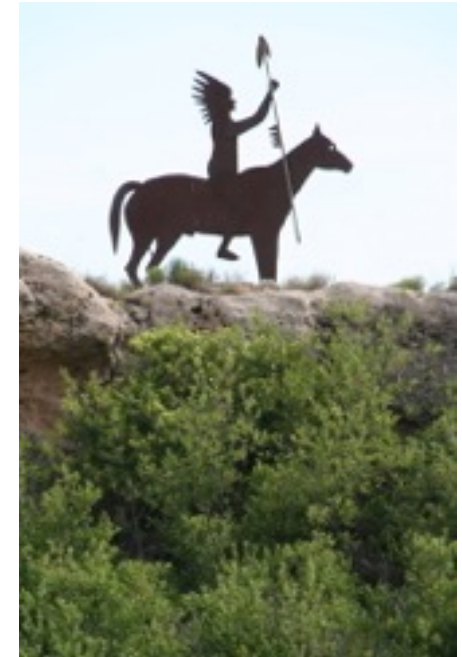

Other sculptures of Tobe's in the county are: Ron Evans Memorial at the Cheyenne County Museum, wheat stalks on the Welcome to St. Francis sign and the Round Hole Campsite north of Bird City. Or stop by the Cheyenne County Museum Complex on U.S. Highway 36 in St. Francis and view his many creations.
